

aboriginal cadetship program

human energy™

applications now open

Applications are now open for Chevron's 2017/2018 Aboriginal Cadetship Program.

Consistently voted one of the top graduate employers in Australia's Top 75 Graduate Employers survey, we are looking for high performing university students who are interested in a dynamic career in the energy industry.

We are encouraging applications from students who are currently studying at university in the following disciplines;

- Human Resources
- Business/ Commerce
- Public Relations/ Communications/ Government Relations
- Finance/ Accounting/ Economics
- Law
- Supply Chain Management/ Logistics
- Mechanical/ Chemical/ Petroleum Engineering

The Chevron Aboriginal Cadetship Program gives you the opportunity to participate in our industry-leading oil and gas projects while acquiring practical skills relevant to your field of study.

As a cadet with Chevron, you will receive:

- Paid employment for 12 weeks at Chevron Australia's head office in Perth
- Study, book and equipment allowance
- Ongoing professional support and mentoring

Following completion of the program, cadets who consistently perform above expectations may be considered for full time graduate positions upon graduation from their studies, where roles are available.

Students must be available for the duration of the program, from 27 November 2017 to 16 February 2018.

Applications are open until Friday 29 September 2017.

For further information and to apply, please send your resume and current academic results to Rishelle Hume – rishelle.hume@chevron.com